

Fishing Line Receptacle

Abstract

An apparatus for use by fishermen defines a receptacle having a closed end and an open end covered with a membrane through which spent fishing line may be inserted. The spent line is received into the receptacle and is held in the receptacle by the membrane. The line is removed later for recycling or disposal in an appropriate manner.